Evoca Group recognised by CDP as a Supplier Engagement Leader

Valbrembo, Bergamo – Evoca Group has been recognised as a Supplier Engagement Leader, receiving an A rating from CDP (formerly Carbon Disclosure Project), the independent international organisation that promotes environmental transparency.

Through its annual Supplier Engagement Assessment, CDP evaluates companies' ability to engage suppliers on climate-related issues, with a specific focus on indirect emissions (Scope 3), which account for a significant share of overall environmental footprint.

For Evoca, this assessment reflects a structured and practical approach to managing climate-related issues across the supply chain. In particular, it highlights the company's ability to collect and manage environmental data, the adoption of governance processes and models already in place, and the integration of sustainability into day-to-day operations.

This result forms part of Evoca's broader sustainability journey, complementing the A- rating achieved in CDP Climate, and reinforcing an integrated approach that combines actions across both direct operations and the wider supply chain.

Through the active engagement of its partners, Evoca Group contributes to improving environmental transparency and reducing emissions across the entire value chain, in line with global decarbonisation goals and with the increasingly central role of supply chains in the transition to a more sustainable economy.
